

The Woolly Jumper Camp

Code of Conduct

Our promise to you...

The Woolly Jumper organising team will provide a programme of activities which are both challenging and fun, ensuring that the camp is run following the Scout Associations rules and regulations.

We will ensure that the Scout Associations Safeguarding and Safety policies are adhered too – providing a safe, supportive and enjoyable camping environment for all participants.

We are committed to taking the interests and well-being of participants into account, in all our considerations and activities.

Our request to you...

The Woolly Jumper team requests that all participants adhere to the following rules:

- Have fun
- Look after one another
- Be respectful of property, leaders, each other and the campsite.
- Try your best and have a positive mental attitude.
- Do not consume alcohol or drugs
- Do not partake in sexual activities

Breaking the rules...

If all participants follow the code of conduct – the camp will be a fun, safe and an enjoyable experience for everyone.

If someone breaches the code of conduct, depending on what they do, they can expect camp chores, to be sent home from camp or ultimately, should a criminal act be committed, the organising team will not hesitate in involving the police.
